OUR CANDIDATE.

FOR PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE.

Subject to the action of the Republican National Convention

Republican National Convention, 1876.

The next Republican National Convention for the nomination of candidates for President and Vice President of the United States, will be held in the CITY OF CINCINNATI, on WEDNESDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF JUNE, 1876, at 12 o'clock noon, and will consist of delegates from each State equal to twice the number of Senators and Representatives in Congress, at large and from districts, and of delegates from the organized Territory and the District of Columbia.

In calling the convention for the election of delegates, the only influence of the several states and territories entitled to vote at Republican elections, and all other voters, without regard to past political differences or previous party affiliations, who are opposed to existing evils and abuses, and desire to promote friendly feeling and permanent harmony throughout the country by maintaining and confirming all the constitutional rights of every citizen, by guarding the ballot and free exercise of the right of suffrage without intimidation and with absolute purity and correctness of election in the interest of no party or faction, but in favor of the equal rights and welfare of all the people, are invited to co-operate with the Republicans of the several States and Territories in securing a full and fair representation in the Convention.

The basis of representation in the Convention shall be the same as that of 1872, and the call for the Convention shall be issued by the Chairman and Secretary of the Republican National Committee.

By order of the Committee.

B. MORGAN, Chairman.
WM. CHANDLER, Secretary.
Washington, D. C., January 15, 1876.

MEPHISTOPHELES.

The essence of hypocrisy has never found any more significant symbolism in words than in the phrase which represents "The Devil piously Preaching," and we desire to present to our readers some of the most striking performances in this role which have ever fallen under our notice. The shameful headline which the Boston Herald paraded over the slander upon Mr. Blaine and its crushing refutation will be borne in mind, while we turn to the editorial page of the following issue of that paper and find the very conductor of that department sighing that "It is one of the saddest features of these corrupt times to hear the breath of so sad a dare to attack men in the highest position and of the purest reputation." We can imagine the "old fellow" stopping here to take breath and give the forked tail a more comfortable turn around the leg of his chair, and then with a fresh load of ink proceeding sadly with this which immediately follows — "Things that would scarcely have been uttered at a few years ago are now sent broadcast over the land, until the farthest of the people in the public men of the country is fearfully shaken." At Cleveland "Old Clootie" himself wiping a few drops of perspiration from his brow and taking a fresh grasp of the quill as he indignantly exclaims, "We are left to wonder how long the villainy can go on and who will be able to stand these searching investigations"! Reader, we have quoted from the editorial of the Boston Herald, which in connection with the above high-toned sentiments, assumes to deprecate the attack upon Mr Blaine, and yet, in the same issue of the paper two of the hired assassins of the concern, located at different points, are permitted to fill columns of space with contradictory and sensational embellishments of the slander, the editors supplying display lines intended to impress the readers with the absolute truth of the inventions. Indeed, the very article pretending to lament the lawlessness of assaults upon character contains words showing that the writer was fully aware that it would be accompanied in print by several columns of shameless libel, concocted for the "market" by employes who cared nothing for the conflict of their several stories, every allegation of which had been conclusively shown to be false. The swelling editorial is spread as a plaster on the conscience of the concern, while the premises are baked in over the counter for the fresh and steaming scandal, that is "sent broadcast over the land" to be copied and hawked about in defiance of all fact by an unscrupulous partisan press. And that is one of the establishments which claims to come under the classification of "the press as a popular educator and moulder of public opinion"!

But we have even more disgusting examples among the Democratic partisan sheets in our own State. The venomous conductor of the Portland Argus seizes upon the aspersion of Mr. Blaine as a pretext for indulging an exhibition of malice that would abash a Modoc. That paper resurrects and attempts to galvanize every Democratic falsehood that has been stamped out during two decades, while pretending a regret in the indulgence of its despicable impulses. It does not scruple to revive the attempt to implicate Mr. Blaine in the Credit Mobilier scandal, and to insinuate, at whitewashing, when it knows that the investigating committee appointed by S. S. Cox, one of the Democratic leaders, comprised a majority of Mr. Blaine's political opponents, including Gen. Banks, a Liberal, William E. Niblack, of Indiana, and William M. Merrick, of Maryland, Democrats of the most intense type, and that they unanimously signed a report that "Mr. Blaine never had any interest, direct or indirect, in Credit Mobilier stock or stock of the Union Pacific Railroad Company." Not a hint of this by the Argus writer, while he revives the name of a notorious scandal and trusts that the public have forgotten enough of its details to enable him to snarch again one who was triumphantly exonerated. This stabbing reputation in the dark is the basest kind of assassination.

And hear this editor, who is supposed to presume to look honest citizens of Portland in the face after sending out his paper on Thursday complaining that Mr. Blaine did not rise to a privileged question in the House on Wednesday to deny the Indiana canard which he had already stamped out, and continuing with such remarks as these:

"Mr. Rollins also maintained silence. What is the trouble? Mr. Blaine was in Washington. The charge was specific and the witnesses named. Both principal and witnesses were silent. And this silence is significant. * * * But if the plain truth would have answered his purpose it would have taken only a moment to have spoken it."

Could the most fertile imagination conceive anything more absolutely infamous than the above? Mr. Blaine and Mr. Rollins silent!! Why, that very editor suppressed from his despatches of Wednesday morning Mr. Blaine's emphatic denial of the whole story, and the specific and conclusive letters of Mr. Rollins and Morton, Bliss & Co. putting the indelible stamp of falsehood upon the stupid accusation. And yet he coolly comes forward and editorially declares that this silence is significant!!

—Perhaps some of our readers may be able to find words to fitly characterize such an exhibition of utter, moral wretchedness and depravity; we abandon the attempt.

The Kennebec Journal says: "Mr. Hamlin's postage bill in relation to third-class mail matter has passed the Senate and we hope it will also pass the House. It is right in principle. All the howlings against it come from men who want to turn the post offices into book-stores and all the mail bags with matter that ought to find transportation in the legitimate ways of trade. They had better keep their denunciations for some better purpose. Senator Morrill gave the bill a warm and able support." We shall print Mr. Morrill's very forcible speech entire for the information of our readers.

THE FIZZLED BOMBSHELL.

THE SLANDER AGAINST MR. BLAINE RECEIVED WITH CONTEMPT

[From the New York Tribune.]

Mud doesn't stick to Mr. Blaine any better than it does to Mr. Bristow. The slander peddlers are having a bad season.

[From the Boston Journal.]

The mud-throwers have got round to Mr Blaine at last. They have begun too violently, though, to hold out long.

[From the Providence Journal.]

For a wonder, the foolish slanders upon Mr. Blaine concerning the Union Pacific Railroad, were overtaken by the refutation before the morning papers went to press yesterday.

[From the Boston Traveller.]

Indianapolis has invented a story with which it was attempted to discredit Mr. Blaine, but it has no better foundation than the Milwaukee story about Secretary Bristow that was so effectively squelched.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

Professional destroyers of the reputations of public men will be both amused and vexed at the blundering incapacity of one of their appreciators, who has undertaken the job of breaking down the character of Mr Blaine. This story about Mr Blaine does not have even the merit of being well invented.

[Wash. Cor. Providence Journal.]

In regard to the story from Indiana connecting Mr Blaine with the sale of Arkansas railroad bonds to the Union Pacific Railroad Company, he asserts his friends to-day in the most positive manner that in warp and woof the story of his ever receiving at any time a penny from the Union Pacific Company is false, that the company never paid any money of which he either directly or indirectly received the advantage and that his statement no one can gainsay. He says the current story that he sold the Arkansas bonds for a consideration received $64,000 on account of this constituent, is absolutely false. He neither handled the bonds or the money, or had to do for any one else, and further, he never had any business transaction of any kind whatever with the Union Pacific Company or any person representing it. Mr Blaine's friends have freely charged that the Indianapolis story was originated for the benefit of Sen. Joe Morton, and was printed to-day to influence the Virginia election. Mr Blaine himself says he is not in any way responsible for this statement.

[Washington Cor. N. Y. Times.]

The story that comes from Indiana concerning ex-Speaker Blaine's connection with the Credit Mobilier case, has not created any sensation here, nor does it make any impression on the public mind. It has been well known for some time that a scandalous publication against Mr. Blaine was in preparation, and he seems to have been aware of its nature, and to have purchased himself with the letters which went out from here and were printed with the original story. In conversation with a large number of members of the House, none were discovered who attached any importance to the report. It is regarded as a shot from rival politicians who are engaged in the advocacy of some other candidate for President. Any stories which may be printed against known Presidential candidates in advance of the Cincinnati Convention will be treated like this publication against Mr. Blaine, and none of them will be believed unless their truth is confessed or sustained by legal testimony sufficient to obtain a conviction in court. This story seems to be a revamping of an old rumor that was in circulation at the time of the Credit Mobilier investigation.

The unfortunate individual who exhibits his peculiar characteristics in the Democratic organ at Belfast, appears to be laboring under some strange delusions. First in supposing that in our notice of his performance we had the slightest expectation of enabling him to see himself as others see him, or any desire to arrest demonstrations of lingeld imbecility in his columns. Our purpose was simply to expose his untruthfulness and pedantry to the ridicule of some of the intelligent people of Waldo county, and we receive abundant proof of their satisfaction. Habits of nature are as strong with some kinds of men as with some kinds of animals and we have no reason to expect that any discipline will ever overcome the inclination of the Belfast editor for wallowing in the mire. In fact, he's most useful as a spectacle and a warning, when most nearly submerged in congenial slime. Another of his strange delusions is in fancying that a person who is habitually and ostentatiously a blackguard in print, can be regarded as respectable under any circumstances by anybody.

A DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS—"THE TRUTH SIFT ON ROBESON, AT LAST." The Providence Journal's Washington special relates with the above caption the following indictment incident of the "smelling committee" business. "One of the Democratic committees has at last discovered a full-fledged sensation. Being in hot pursuit of Secretary Robeson, it called for certain telegrams, and obtained among others one in cipher, which was regarded as very suspicious from the number of arbitrary words which it appeared to contain. A key and an explanation was insisted upon, when the following terrible case of official corruption, clearly involving high crimes and misdemeanors, came to light

"CAMDEN, New Jersey.

To Secretary Robeson, Washington, D. C.

The baby is troubled with teething, and weanlig at this time the doctor thinks may be dangerous. He advises the employment of a wet nurse, if a sound and healthy one can be found.

(Signed) MARY."

The latest Democratic jobbery is in connection with the pay of the army of witnesses summoned by investigating committees. As the fund for this purpose has been exhausted certificates of indebtedness are issued, and the House managers are delaying any appropriation—while the "faithful" are engaged in buying up these certificates at forty cents on the dollar. They already amount to a large sum and when they are all bought up a deficiency bill will furnish a harvest to the jobbers.

We trust that the people will bear in mind that through the wilful neglect of the Democratic House the public buildings of the United States throughout the whole country are depending upon the courtesy of gas and coal companies or the private contributions of officials for light and heat. In our own city the Postmaster is buying kerosene to light the Government post-office. And Sam Randall says it is none of his business.

THIRD-CLASS POSTAGE

The following is the text of the bill regulating postage on mail matter of the third-class, as it passed the Senate without a division on Wednesday:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, etc., That mail matter of the third class shall embrace all pamphlets, occasional publications, regular publications devoted primarily to advertising purposes, or for free circulation, or for circulation at nominal subscription rates, prices current, catalogues, manuals, handbills, posters, unsealed circulars, prospectuses, books, bound or unbound, book manuscripts, proof-sheets, maps, prints, engravings, blanks, flexible patterns, samples of merchandise, sample cards, photographic paper, letter envelopes, postal envelopes and wrapper, cards, plain and ornamental paper, photographic representations, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, cions, and all other matter which may be declared mailable by law as third-class matter, and all other articles not above the weight prescribed by law, which are not from their form or nature liable to destroy, deface or otherwise injure the contents of the mail bags, or the person of any one engaged in the postal service. All liquids, poisons, glass, explosive materials, and obscene books or papers shall be excluded from the mails.

SEC. 2. That packages of matter of the third class shall not exceed four pounds in weight, and shall be subject to examination and the rates of postage hereafter provided. The postage on mail matter of the third class shall be at the following rates: For all distances, 1 cent for each ounce or fractional part thereof. Every package of the third class of mail matter shall bear the post-mark of the office at which the same shall be mailed for transportation.

SEC. 3. That postage on third-class matter shall be prepaid by stamps. If, however, the postage on third-class matter mailed at any office shall be less than the full amount above prescribed, in case where the sender is known, such sender shall be notified of the fact, and the amount of postage due shall be collected from such sender before the same shall be transmitted by mail. In case the sender is not known, and it has not been the evident intent on the part of the party so depositing the package to place less than the full postage thereon, such package shall be forwarded and double the amount of the deficient postage shall be collected from the party to whom it is addressed or delivered at its proper destination.

SEC. 4. That the sender of any article of the third class of mail matter may write or print on the outside thereof, or on the wrappers of newspapers or magazines sent from the office of publication to regular subscribers the time to which such subscription therefor has been paid.

SEC. 5. That transient newspapers and magazines shall be admitted to and transmitted in the mails at the rate of one cent for every three ounces or fractional part thereof, and one cent for each two additional ounces or fractional part thereof.

SEC. 6. That this act shall take effect and after the 1st day of July, 1876.

There is one Democratic paper in this State with enough of public spirit and self respect to speak fairly of a distinguished citizen of Maine who is opposed to it in politics. We should state, however, that its efforts to deal honorably have hitherto elicited threats of "treading it out of the party," and the Machias Union may certainly expect a shower of rubbish from its partisan contemporaries for the following good-natured reference to Mr. Blaine:

Mr. Blaine is no doubt proud of the cheerful support given him for the Presidency by the Republicans of Maine, his adopted State.

We are not at all surprised to see so much unanimity for him. He is apparently as worthy as any Republican candidate yet mentioned, and we always like to see a State honor its own men. Besides, it is the thing is to occur, viz., a fifth administration under the Republican party, we should prefer to see a man from Maine at the head.

The Portland Press, says: "Gov. Connor has nominated Edwin C. Burleigh, Esq., of Bangor, for Land Agent. An excellent selection." Mr. Burleigh is a son of Hon. Parker P. Burleigh and has been connected with the Land Office for several years. During the last session he rendered very efficient service as Assistant Clerk of the House. We are glad to see that Governor Connor is not to be diverted by anybody's personal spites from his determination to consult only the public interests and he fully understands that these demand the services of some one familiar with the business in closing up the affairs of the Land Agency.

Congressman Martin I. Townsend, one of the strongest men in Congress, told the editor of the Troy Whig the other day that if the Republicans of the House of Representatives could nominate a President they would nominate Blaine."

VULCANIZED RUBBER COATED PIPE!

This pipe has two layers of pure rubber, both upon the outside and inside, with a layer of strong canvas between. This coating is unaffected either by acids or salts, and does not rust, crack or peel, thus making it the most durable and perfect pipe in use for conducting water.

It has been tested for years in many cities where it has been thoroughly tested, and has received the highest testimonials for its superiority over pipes coated tar or asphaltum with other substances.

After a careful examination of its merits, it has been adopted by the

COMMITTEE MEETING

Examination of Witnesses

The Committee appointed to investigate the account [illegible] of the Water Board met in the Common Council room yesterday afternoon The Water Board were present and a large number of witnesses

Mr William Savage, of Brewer, was the first witness called He testified that his business is wharf building, and that last summer he was engaged in laying the timbers in the dam Had charge of a large crew of workmen, who were taken off at various times to clear away the stone thrown out of the scows He kept an account in his head of the time his men were employed on stone work and at the end of the week he put it down on his account book During his fifth week of work he returned 19 days labor on stone work to Mr Haskell to be given to Mr Blood This was an account for the first four weeks' work The whole account included 309 days Was never called upon to return the balance of account No inquiries were ever made of him by anyone as to how much time his men had devoted to this stone work He was acting under Mr Richardson's orders who told him not to be too hard on Mr Farrell If there is any error in the account it falls below rather than exceeds the amount given Was discharged by Mr Richardson without knowing any reason for it He never found fault with any work, can recognize a good piece of masonry Think the masonry done on the East end is very bad workmanship When the work was going on saw water running under the masonry Was sure it ran under the wall Don't know whether the foundation was paved and concreted or not Did not see anything of the kind Think it was a very open wall Foundation timbers are firmly bedded down

Think there were too many men employed Have seen times when all could not get their cant dogs on a piece of timber Think they were not all used except when the tide was down

In relation to filling in the dam he said as soon as the scows would float over the work the rocks were thrown out in piles on each side. Remembered one day when he requested Mr Richardson not to put rocks in a certain place, but he paid no attention to the request Often had to dig trenches through the rocks to get the timbers down. Mr. Farrell's men were there but twice to clear away the rocks. Saw two or three of his men there at one time, and they stayed less than an hour. At another time four or five, perhaps six men stayed there about three hours.

Mr. O Richardson was seldom there when work commenced. Have seen him smoke fifteen or twenty times during business hours.

Mr. Savage was then examined by members of the Water Board. He stated that Mr. Haskell applied for the time his men had been engaged removing the stone during his fifth week of work. Don't know whether it was the usual time to give in the time. Mr. Haskell gave no reason for calling for the time then, but said Mr. Blood wanted it. The filling began to be delivered about the 23d of August. Rocks were placed on the timbers to keep them down at high water. Never kept memorandum of the number of scow-loads delivered in a day. Should think there were twenty some days. Never gave an account of the 309 days to any one. Did not consider it my duty to return it. No one requested me to keep it back. Told Mr. Ricker, of the committee, that it my account was a fair average of the whole work on the dam there would be something like 1500 days' work done by men employed by the city, that ought to be charged to Mr. Farrell Kept no account of the names of men who worked under him Didn't know whether the men who worked in removing the stone all belonged to his crew or not When he did work on wharves generally kept a daily account of his work Do not generally keep account in my head Told Mr Richardson how account would be kept and he told me that would be satisfactory

Mr Savage then gave a description of the masonry and the wall He saw a Mr Clark with whom he talked about the masonry Never worked as a mason and did not consider himself an expert The time of the men was kept by the hour and when the men worked ten hours called that a day Don't know what men were doing when they were not at work Suppose their wages were stopped at that time Did not know half the names of the men who worked for him, but thinks he would have noticed any stranger

John A Brooks laborer on the dam next testified He commenced work when they began on the east end His duty was to move timber but when stones and rocks were thrown out of the scows helped clear them away Commenced handling rocks somewhere near the last part of the week after Mr Savage came there Was in a large crew of men Couldn't state exactly the time occupied in handling rocks Remember I was one of a crew of men who were employed half of a day while Mr Savage was there and two half days after he was generally handling rocks [illegible] that we might [illegible] to work As a general thing move the rocks in the morning where we should have been placing timber [illegible] knowledge the crew was employed one-quarter of the time in handling rocks Could not state what proportion of rocks the city men handled, perhaps one fourth Don't think Mr Farrell ever employed a large crew.

In the cross examination he stated he was hired by Mr Eaton Don't remember on which day the first scow [illegible] brought down When I told Mr Eaton [illegible] were employed, I meant the average number Remember that there was trouble between Savage and Richardson Mr Savage forbade Mr Richard on putting stone in a certain place, but the men were ordered to unload in that place The scow was [illegible] from her moorings Noticed Mr Richardson smoking several times Never saw him [illegible] handed to Mr Richardson [illegible] at a time I thought he had been drinking There was no [illegible] between Savage and Richardson

Michael Burke was the next witness Mr Savage was there all the time he worked on the dam Handled rocks [illegible] were very day Had to [illegible] so as to give [illegible] to work All the crew were [illegible] employed in this kind of work Perhaps they worked from half an hour to two hours each day Don't remember that the crew worked half a day at any one time at clearing away rocks There was always delay when the tide left the works The [illegible] moved about the rocks We placed them where they would not have to be moved again The crew on the dam moved about one quarter of the rocks [illegible] about three quarters were thrown directly in place from the scows Knew nothing of the difficulty between Savage and Richardson Every one since [illegible] the [illegible] The men were not allowed to smoke on the [illegible] during business hours

Cross-examination Was employed by Mr Richardson Was there several days before Savage came and a few weeks before Richardson [illegible] Did not know that O Richardson was superior in authority to Savage Have worked to Palmer & Johnson [illegible] Never asked Mr Johnson to [illegible] with the Board in relation to [illegible] Crane and [illegible] the job together and I spoke to Mr Johnson about it Would have filled the dam for $1 20 per yard Looked around to see where the rocks could be obtained Mr Johnson said he went [illegible] Mr [illegible] Understood that the rocks were to be stowed away when I was [illegible] of the contract Have had experience in building dams in Nova Scotia and on the Penobscot Didn't fix any plan, but told Mr Johnson to make the best bargain he could Have built eighteen dams many of them brook dams Built one this Spring that [illegible] Don't know that the crew of men employed was too large

John M Shaw, of Veazie was the next witness He worked on the dam about 10 days and handled rocks a third of the time in order to get a chance to work Think Mr Burke's testimony substantially correct Think there were too many men employed to work advantageously they were in each other's way They were all used at times in handling rocks Saw three or four of Farrell's men [illegible] half a dozen times The men on the dam handled most of the rock

Cross-examination Worked with cant-log Don't know how many men worked in my crew Should think it would average fifteen Noticed there was not good feeling between Savage and Richardson Think Mr Savage would accomplish more work in a given time than Mr Richardson Saw checks eight and ten feet deep filled from drags drawn from the shore

William Kent, of Veazie, was called upon and stated that he agreed with the testimony already given in relation to handling rock Knew of no trouble between Messrs Savage and Richardson

John Clark, Bangor, stated no new facts in his direct testimony but it agreed with what had already been given in almost every respect

In the cross-examination he stated that Mr Brooks spoke to him about coming down to testify. Mr. Blood asked him to call and see Mr T N Egery at his office He went there and stated in the presence of Mr. Savage and Mr. Egery in substance what he has already stated here. Mr. Egery asked the questions Did not trouble the rocks hauled on to the dam on drags. Never saw any men coming from Bangor side to move stone. Never remember working half a day at a time moving rocks Remember hearing Richard on tell Farrell to send over some men to move stone, and he said he could spare none.

Brooks was re-called and stated that Mr. Blood told him he was wanted at Mr. Egery's office Mr. Blood also asked him if he had noticed the men handling rocks. Mr. Egery sent word to him by Kendrick Forbes. In answer to questions he stated to Messrs. Savage and Egery what he has already stated in his testimony.

Oscar Moore, of Veazie, then testified in substance to what we have already given in relation to the handling of the rocks

Mr. Stetson, in behalf of the Water Board, then said that they would admit any further testimony such as had been presented without hearing it, as there seemed to be a striking similarity in what they all said. No further witnesses were examined and the Committee adjourned until this afternoon.

AN ATTACK REPELLED.

The Katahdin Postmaster puts his foot on a Democratic Slander

KATAHDIN IRON WORKS, April 13, 1876.

To the Editor of the Whig and Courier

By reference to the Commercial of the 11th inst., you will find a piece entitled "A Cheeky Postmaster." Will you allow me a word in reply. I can make no better beginning than by saying that the whole thing as presented by the gentlemanly Mr. Emery is a false, contemptible lie, and worthy of the source from whence so many dirty scandals emanate The facts are these

The Mr Kelliher referred to has been at work here for more than a year and for some time past has been suspected of bringing liquor here to sell or give away As the case may be About a month ago a package came here to his address and was left at the Post Office, where all express bundles are left Suspecting a [illegible] liquor the Agent of the works was called in and shown the keg He immediately called Mr K into the office and asked him what he meant, and of course he protested that there was nothing in it but clothing It was finally decided to open the keg, which was done, with Kelliher's consent and in presence of him It and three witnesses The keg was found to contain two gallons of whiskey with a [illegible] little funnel for conveying it into smaller vessels It is unnecessary to say that this [illegible] found its way, very properly into the hands of Mr Deputy Sheriff Millett

I had with [illegible] any notoriety which connect my name with efforts to suppress the liquor traffic The [illegible] wholly false and worthy only of Mr Emery is that relating to the manner in which he asserts I found out that Kelliher had ordered liquor by reading his postal card Kelliher ever asked me how I found out that he had ordered liquor and I certainly did not admit that it was by reading a postal card—for I have no knowledge of his ever sending such a document from this or any other office I have never read any such postal from him or any other individual ordering liquor of any kind, and I think there can be no better testimony offered to prove that Mr Kelliher never got any postal card through this or any other office than the fact that the high toned gentleman who has excited so much sympathy in the heart of Mr Emery is not versed in [illegible]

But it is strange that the high-minded editor of the Commercial should seek to make a sensational paragraph of this. But when it is notorious that he always [illegible] [illegible] the cause of the vicious and the [illegible] [illegible] It is not rather an honor to be singled out as the mark for his vile pen, when so many notable and honorable men have before been the subjects of his [illegible] men in the District of whose shoes he would be unworthy to stoop to unloose, Many [illegible] of your own city [illegible] and other [illegible] throwing black [illegible] for the [illegible] to work [illegible] attack simply [illegible] tells him Alfred [illegible] he has no means of [illegible] the truth of them there is no better [illegible] than to leave him to the mercy of that conscience which must fill so large a place in his breast

Put the [illegible] law does not [illegible] that [illegible] I have violated no laws of State or Government and the gentlemen who threaten us [illegible] to [illegible] better than that there are two [illegible] [illegible] they may yet [illegible] to their cost

Yours truly,

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SECRETARY OF THE REFORM CLUB OF HAMPDEN

To the President and Members of the Hampden Reform Club

GENTLEMEN Believing that a general and complete report in the view of the [illegible] and progression of our club from January [illegible] 1875 until February [illegible] 1876, would be appropriate and desirable I beg leave to submit the following for your consideration and acceptance.

As your Secretary I am happy to report this club in a most flourishing condition There were added to our constitution at the end of our first quarter, 26 names, at the end of the second quarter 15 more names had been added, making 41 at the end of the third quarter 21, making 62 at the end of the fourth quarter 19 making now at the end of the first year, 81 names on the constitution of men that have enrolled their names [illegible] that have [illegible] drove and [illegible] [illegible] but have not pledged [illegible] with the help of Almighty God to [illegible] to do right Other names to the number of [illegible] have signed the Iron-clad pledge, but have not yet signed the constitution

The club have held one hundred and four meetings in all including our business meetings and two general meetings each week Have held nine missionary meetings—three at West Hampden, three at New Mills two at Newburgh, and one at Ellingwood's Corner North Winterport

The club have been very successful in obtaining names to the general pledge, and still continue to add new ones at nearly every meeting We have at the present time 280 names to the general pledge alone

The financial condition of the club is good, cash to the amount of $90 70 has been deposited in the treasury, and the amount of $90 00 has been disbursed by vote of the club, leaving a balance of 70 cents on hand Our liabilities, or outstanding debt, is $6 10, our resources are the hearts of all the good people in Hampden

We have received from time to time quite a number of valuable and useful presents, among which are cash from Messrs Stetson & Co , of Bangor, $10 00, a valuable desk from Mrs Curtis, reading matter from Messrs Bortello & Burr, and Emery & Butler, of Bangor, a generous donation of valuable books from Mr Daniel Crosby, the New York Daily Witness for three months from Dea Wm Holt, twenty-four numbers of the Atlantic Monthly magazine from Miss Sallie Crosby, same number of Harper's from Mrs. Norris; a set of curtains, cord and tassels, from Miss Susie Moor, two mottoes, "No Cross, No Crown," from Miss Clara Redman, and "God is our Refuge and Strength," from Miss Alice Willey, books from Miss Fifield, Miss Rice, and Mrs Jackson, lamps from Mrs Hinckley, Miss Annie Fogg and Mr. Cheney, and hanging book case from Mr. N. P Emerson

Honorable mention should be made of the untiring zeal and devotion to the cause of President Greenhalgh and officers of the club from Jan. 31 until May 4. Our thanks are due to President Sewall and subordinate officers for their determined efforts in the advancement of temperance from May 4 until November 2, two terms of office. Great honor is due President Emerson and the executive power for their faithful fulfilment of duties incumbent on them from November 2, 1875, until February 1, 1876. As much of the labor and business of the club devolves on our executive and financial committees, we are under the greatest obligations to the brothers who have composed these committees for their honest and faithful fulfillment of duties. Thanks are also due to certain members of this club for labor given in repairing our club room

We have received much valuable assistance from the ladies who so nobly came forward and tendered their services in singing and otherwise at the commencement of our work, thereby sustaining and strengthening us in our endeavors to advance the cause of temperance.

We feel truly grateful for assistance in carrying forward our meetings, to Mrs. Mayo Mrs Dean, Mrs Davis Mrs Colten Mrs Norwood, and Miss Mayo of the Gray's Corner crusade, who have been a continual source of strength and encouragement in times of need.

We would ask the choicest blessings to attend those ladies in our immediate vicinity, who, from time to time, have come forward to our relief with pecuniary assistance influence and the warm hand of friendship in the days of our hardest struggles thereby giving us strength and courage to fight the good fight

We would render thanks to God for the many and strong friends that have come to our assistance from the church, men of upright christian hearts who are able and willing to give us their counsels and advice, who have been a pillar of strength for the weak and who have always stood in the place of the Friend in Need to our club

And now gentlemen at the close of this my fourth term of office, allow me to say that our experience of the past year has been a school alike beneficial to officers and members of this organization Our little school of eleven scholars has developed into a class of 81 men who, with charity for all, are doing a missionary work that no other organization has ever equalled in this town

We have proved the old saying, [illegible] [illegible] and we have [illegible] to say blessed is the peacemaker for he shall inherit the heart of his brethren

Our opinion are all in sympathy on the [illegible] that [illegible] saving the unfortunate drinking man and placing him on the rock of temperance by moral suasion

And now brothers allow me to thank the officers and members of this club for their kind consideration and support in the effort I have made to serve you faithfully [illegible]

And now [illegible] the beginning of this the new year [illegible] pledge our lives anew that with the help of Almighty God we will battle on [illegible] with renewed work [illegible] hand to hand until [illegible] to [illegible] fallen brother

DR. SCHENCK'S STANDARD REMEDIES

The standard remedies for all diseases of the lungs are SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP, SCHENCK'S SEA WEED TONIC and SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and, if taken before the lungs are destroyed, a speedy cure is effected

To these three medicines Dr J H Schenck, of Philadelphia, owes his unrivalled success in the treatment of pulmonary diseases

The Pulmonic Syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs, nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest and the lungs begin to heal

To enable the Pulmonic Syrup to do this, Schenck's Mandrake Pills and Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach and liver Schenck's Mandrake Pills act on the liver removing all obstructions relax the gall bladder, the bile starts freely, and the liver is soon relieved

Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic is a gentle stimulant and alterative, the alkali of which it is composed, mixes with the food and prevents souring It assists the digestion by toning up the stomach to a healthy condition so that the food and the Pulmonic Syrup will make good blood, then the lungs heal and the patient will surely get well if care is taken to prevent fresh cold

All who wish to consult Dr Schenck either personally or by letter, can do so at his principal office corner of SIXTH and ARCH STS Philadelphia every Monday

Schenck's medicines are sold by all druggists throughout the country

H. R. STEVENS Esq

Dear Sir—During the past five years I have had ample opportunity to judge of the merits of Vegetine My wife has used it for complaints attending a lady of delicate health with more beneficial results than anything else which she ever tried I have given it to my children for almost every circumstance attending a large family and always with marked benefit I have taken it myself with great benefit that I cannot find words to express my unqualified appreciation of its goodness

While performing my duties as a Police Officer in this city, it has been my lot to fall in with a great deal of sickness I [illegible] men Vegetine and I never knew of a case where it did not prove all that was claimed for it Particularly in cases of a debilitated or impoverished state of the blood its effects are really wonderful, and for all complaints arising from an impure state of the blood it appears to work like a charm and I do not believe there are any circumstances under which Vegetine can be used with injurious results and it will always afford me pleasure to give any further information as to what I know about VEGETINE

LITTLE BOBBIE A SKETCH IN PARIS

"Well, sir, I am glad to meet you here," said Mr Armstead

"Ha, ha! thanks, thanks, thanks very much, thanks," muttered Mr. Airey, in reply. Mr. Airey had but lately arrived in Paris from Bond street, Mr Armstead from Beacon street. The Londoner had run against the Bostonian at the corner of the Rue de la Paix.

"Are you going my way?" asked Mr. Airey, lightly.

"I am at your service, sir," said Mr Armstead, with a courteous motion of the hand. As they moved along the broad pavement, the Englishman entertained his friend with a thousand remarks on men and things. Paris always loosed his tongue; for while he tasted with delight the gayety and sprightly of the place he found at this same time much solid food for the meditative. When he was moralizing he felt that he was doing his duty.

And so with space gratified and conscience in repose, a pinch of snuff above him, and a good listener by his side, the sprightly gentleman would comment for hours on the frivolity of the Parisian. When he had brought to an end a caudle discourse on the probable hazards and customs of a passing Patagonian, it occurred that for the moment he was without another subject on which to dilate. Turning to his companion, like an amiable social Inquisitor, he asked "Now, what do you find to do with yourself in Paris?"

Mr Armstead, whose share in the conversation had consisted of occasional solemn bows of acknowledgment now or then, hesitated or some moments, and then answered thoughtfully "Well, I come down town and I walk around."

But surely," cried the other, "not a man of your active hobbies—why, my dear Colonel Armstead, I—"

"Pardon me for interrupting you, but drop the Colonel, if you please."

Mr. Airey was vastly astonished. "I beg your pardon—I beg your pardon," he said, but surely—why I always thought that Gen Armstead was particularly fond of military titles."

"Well, sir, we have had some pretty serious killing to do, and some of us didn't take quite so humorous a view of the profession as we did when it was confined to Indians and Mexicans."

"But still to the custom in England, at every election day, a man who has served to stop at the—And you who were destinguished—you suppose me, you suppose it very much."

Mr Armstead acknowledged the compliment by bending his head and slightly waving his right hand. After a pause, during which the company and watched him with much curiosity, he said. It was found that there was certain awkwardness in sending the post over superior officer for a bag of salt or a 2 cent stamp."

Mr Airey told that like Second Columbus he had discovered a new America. The novel and interesting specimens must be drawn out to be understood or collected and commented upon at his club. He ventured on musing manner as he asked the seeming question—"How do you like Paris?" Mr. Armstead took time to reply. "I like it very well, but I find that there is a little too much of the New England mixed in my composition."

"And a capital good thing too," observed the other encouragingly.

The Pilgrim Fathers would not have appeared to advantage on the Boulevards."

"Certainly not. And you country-men, as a rule—are they good—devoted to Paris? You know, of course, the sayings of the Americans when they go to Paris?"

As Boston is viewed gravely at the quotation, "Some such one," he said, and added pleasantly after a pause, "the American in Paris is too often a poisson hors l'eau or snowball."

The Englishman would doubtless have commented at some length on this statement, but a cage was at that moment caught by another which would soon have even better fixed. Above a large window, which was modestly covered by muslin curtains, appeared the name of Madame Lalouette, Modiste. Over the M — ome. The name of the gentleman supposing Modiste and Tailor was a piece of black paper was carefully pasted. "Look and Mr Airey, I get a peep at the work-room!" Just look at the wonderful magic. Shades have been transformed with regal possessions, don't you see? See the stuffs in that paper, with blue on the curved of all sizes, which it comes every second and speeds to every fragrant—Sophie must, I could say, women, confessions as Madame Lalouette the Champs-Elysées? Come I cannot conceive, says the other, but Madame De Cussay is sure to know." So they hastened off to the third Lady, and the number as advertised above Paris by a couple square of black paper. It is magnificent."

Here Mr Airey paused for breath, and answered gallantly to the delighted consciousness of having been unusually brilliant.

"I know it," said Mr. Armstead. "Mr Burke is an exceedingly witty writer. I like the wonderful prophet of Kamschatka."

"Exactly, capital" said the American. "The large window of the magnificent modiste was divided by a wall of fresh muslin as the interior of La Mode were viewed as those of the Bon Ton. But at one side of the window was placed a small square of white glass, so that two persons were gazing at the couple of customers behind were enabled to see all that was going on in the establishment without themselves being observed. The gentleman had a method of scratching his head with his fingers, and smiling at the lady. Mr. Airey was fixed, but said he could not yield. It is strange, I consider, indeed determination. That he remembered the Artistic summer so clearly, yet before strange that on the eighth day after their former meeting he had his hand on the bell of their apartment. Perhaps he went to metallize, perhaps to offer medicine. The door was opened by a French maid, who was crying in a most becoming manner. The visitor's imagination was aroused. "Is it Bobby?" he gasped. She nodded prettily. She could not speak for weeping. She led the way into the first room, and after a moment's hesitation he followed her. The sight which he beheld was more surprising. On the table stood a bottle of physic, and by it the most delicate of wine-biscuits untasted. Mr Armstead, his somewhat rugged face softened by emotion, was bending like a breeches-maker with the charge withdrawn, over a comfortable sofa. Opposite to him was his wife, who had sunk upon the floor, and with tears pouring down her cheeks was soothing the little sufferer. The little sufferer! Between husband and wife, propped by the softest pillows, draped with the softest shawls, important, and deeply conscious of his importance, reclined the prince of pugs. Mr. Armstead came forward. "How do you do, Sir?" he said, "I hoped that you were the physician. Have you any acquaintance with the maladies of dogs?" "None whatever," said Mr. Airey, tartly; "and indeed I am glad to see that you can interest yourself in a dog at such a moment." "At such a moment!" repeated the others slowly. "When little Bobby—" began the Englishman, affected. "Why, Sir, this is little Bobby."

At the sound of his name, uttered in that measured tone which he knew so well, the sufferer turned a pitiful eye upon the intruder. "Behold the great-minded sufferer!" he seemed to say. His skin was so loose that he would have been well had an accomplished workwoman gathered it in at the sides. His coat was starry, and his tail, that sign of his nobility uncurled. The links about his chop visage were deepened by illness. The face told of suffering but of a certain pride in the interest which it excited. The large, dark eye was turned upon Airey, but awoke no pity in his breast. That he should have expended a whole week's sentiment upon a sick dog! As well sit down in the ditch with the great Mr. Sterne to lament over a dead donkey. "I think I had better go," said the moralist, with a glance at Mrs. Armstead. "I am afraid that my wife is not equal to conversation at present." "I trust that we shall have the pleasure of seeing you under happier circumstances." "Ah, thanks, I'm sure, ah," murmured the visitor, and he glanced again at the lady. She was wholly unconscious of his presence. She was holding the limp right hand of the patient in between, and was bathing it with her tears. Mr. Airey departed abruptly.

The next morning, as the moralist was toying with his breakfast, and meditating pitifully on the New-England character, a curious note was brought to him. It was shaped like a fan. He opened it with a sniff of scorn. "Another novelty?" he exclaimed testily. "One smuland pots are made like beer-jugs; we shall soon have beer-jugs in the shape of baths, and baths disguised as hansom cabs. Marvelous powers of invention truly!" He spread out the sham fan, and read the nimble-pointed characters:

DEAR MR. AIREY: How you must have wondered at my strange conduct yesterday! I was in the deepest despair, and quite unfit to receive any body. To-day all looks bright again. The dear doctor came soon after you left. He is reckoned very clever, and attends the dogs of the best people in Paris of all parties. The favorite hound of the Duc d'Aumerle, La Marquise de Baldefeo's furious spaniels, (of course you remember Mr Cushin's brilliant note,) and M. Baretta's snow poodle Fraternite, are among its patients. He says that our little Bobby has no serious malady, but recommends a warmer climate. So we start at once for the South, and shall Winter at Nice. I should prefer the Nile, but hear that the bests are so irritating for dogs. Will you do me a great favor, and send me some cleansing tables when you go back to London. I would not trouble you, but they are invaluable for Bobby's skin. My husband is in despair at having to leave without returning your visit. Perhaps we may meet somewhere in the South. Very cordially yours.

PRUDENCE ARMSTEAD.

"I buy tablets for that cur!" cried Mr. Airey. "Well, I suppose I shall," he added. He could eat no more breakfast. He took down his diary, and wrote in it with the air of one who fulfills an important duty—"American women are absurdly over-sensitive."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Administrator's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of a license from the Honorable John Godfrey, Judge of Probate for the County of Penobscot, granted on the first Tuesday of August, A. D. 1876, I shall sell at public auction on THURSDAY, the second day of September next, at three o'clock in the afternoon, at the office of Hamlin & Hamlin, in Bangor, the following described Real Estate and interests in Real Estate belonging to the estate of Winthrop S. Wilson, late of said Brewer, deceased, together with the reversion of the widow's dower therein:

First—One-twelfth part in common and undivided of a certain lot of land situate in the Town of Brewer, bounded as follows: Beginning at Hancock County, on the north line of said Brewer, at the southeast corner of land owned and occupied by Samuel Dunn; thence westerly by said Dunn's land to the river; thence southerly by said river to the land of Benjamin Hodgdon; thence easterly by said Hodgdon's land to the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County; thence northerly by said road to the first bound mentioned, containing sixty acres, more or less, excepting and reserving from the above described premises a certain lot or parcel of land sold by the said Winthrop S. Wilson to Hiram Hodgdon, by deed dated April 1, 1871, and recorded in Penobscot Registry of Deeds, Book 346, page 440, and also excepting and reserving a certain lot or parcel of land sold by said Winthrop S. Wilson to Samuel W. Dennis, by deed dated July 5, 1872, and recorded in Penobscot Registry of Deeds, Book 361, page 441, which said lot or parcel of land is bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of the lot hereby conveyed, at the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County, at the land of said Hodgdon; thence southerly by said Hodgdon's land to the river; thence westerly by said river to the land of said Dunn; thence northerly by said Dunn's land to the road aforesaid; thence easterly by said road to the first mentioned bound, containing one acre, more or less.

Second—One eighth part in common and undivided of a certain lot of land situate in the Town of Brewer, bounded as follows: Beginning at Hancock County, on the north line of said Brewer, at the southeast corner of land owned and occupied by Samuel Dunn; thence westerly by said Dunn's land to the river; thence southerly by said river to the land of Benjamin Hodgdon; thence easterly by said Hodgdon's land to the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County; thence northerly by said road to the first bound mentioned, containing one acre, more or less, excepting and reserving from the above described premises a certain lot or parcel of land sold by the said Winthrop S. Wilson to Samuel W. Dennis, by deed dated July 5, 1872, and recorded in Penobscot Registry of Deeds, Book 361, page 441, which said lot or parcel of land is bounded and described as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of the lot hereby conveyed, at the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County, at the land of said Hodgdon; thence southerly by said Hodgdon's land to the river; thence westerly by said river to the land of said Dunn; thence northerly by said Dunn's land to the road aforesaid; thence easterly by said road to the first mentioned bound, containing one acre, more or less.

Third—One eighth part in common and undivided of a certain lot of land situate in the Town of Brewer, bounded as follows: Beginning at the northeast corner of land owned and occupied by Samuel Dunn, on the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County; thence westerly by said Dunn's land to the river; thence southerly by said river to the land of Benjamin Hodgdon; thence easterly by said Hodgdon's land to the road leading from Brewer to Hancock County; thence northerly by said road to the first bound mentioned, containing one acre, more or less, excepting and reserving from the above described premises a certain lot or parcel of land sold by the said Winthrop S.
